Native American homes/shelters - Research Project (mini)

The topic of my research is the: Igloo

The most significant characteristic of the igloo is:

The most significant characteristic of the Igloo is that it is made out of ice. Igloos are usually associated with all Inuit. The igloo is cold inside. There are three traditional types of igloos, all of different sizes and all used for different purposes. The largest igloos were normally built in groups of two.

One of the most important things I learned about the _____ was:

The first thing I learned is the igloos are usually associated with all Inuit. The second thing I learned that there are three traditional types of Igloos, all used for different purposes for different purposes and for different sizes. The third thing I learned is that the largest igloos were normally built in groups of two. The fourth thing I learned is that the igloos can provide warm shelter.

One of the igloo strengths was:

One of the Igloos strength is that they can provide warm shelter for some people. It can protect people. It can save peoples lives.

One of the _____ weaknesses or limitations was:

Igloos are not permanent houses because when it is not cold anymore the snow is going to melt from the igloo. Igloos weakness is that the igloos are not permanent houses, and in the summer time the igloos will melt.
