Hello Parents!!

Happy New Year!! 2021 made it and I think we mostly survived 2020.

We are starting back with two days. Two days to remind us all that we need to get to bed early and get that needed sleep. I know that I'll be adjusting my sleep schedule...I was a little bad through the break.

For Thursday and Friday we are reviewing material. There will NOT be new spelling words or a quiz on Friday...too soon. We will ease back into things with these first two days.

Actually one of the exciting first mini projects is the "Pen-Pal" letters our class will be writing to our partner first grade class. This will be an exciting first writing project and an opportunity to share a little about each student, maybe some of their creativity and their interests. This will be in place of asking everyone to write about their winter break...I know too many of us didn't have the most exciting break.

Ms. Koutsouros and I are so excited to be working together and starting this spring with this class!! We are so happy to welcome a new face to the class...a familiar face, but a great new addition to the class family!

We won't have homework this week...that will resume next week.

Let's have a great start, in class, to 2021!! Happy New Year to everyone!!

BOOK PROJECTS: 5 projects due by March 12th. <http://mrbrantley.weebly.com/book-projects.html>
