Hello Parents!!

Another strange week is done. This week was odd in how we lost a day...but it was a bit treacherous with the ice. Now we are up to 40*s and it's feeling like an Indiana spring. STRANGE!!

We have gotten through with several good projects and assignments this week. As we wrap up this slightly crazy week we are still researching the Forbidden City, we are writing hypotheses surrounding Hot Wheels and Ms. Mann is continuing with word morphology. We've been busy, but in the best way.

Next week we will continue with our research, breaking down the process of writing a hypothesis and either proving or disproving our hypotheses and much more. We continue to balance the best work over just layering the quantity.

Ms. Mann and I are excited and working on several upcoming projects that will be very fun and engaging. It's a bit crazy that we are already finishing up January, but time flies!

Here's to a great and restful weekend!!
