Hello Parents,

Full week done!...minus a 2-hr delay. This was a great full week of good work! We did good work with reading and completing the study guides for Call of the Wild. I think we are ready for the performance Monday morning! Work in Math was also a good thing this week. Working on fractions converting to decimals and then to percentages...this was a great bit of work!

I was a good week of work and fun!

Next week we get things started in earnest with robotics and more programming! This is exciting stuff! We also will begin to explore some of the science of pendulums and the lissajous patterns, harmonic motion and just cool designs! This will be a nice tie to sound and sound in visual form.

Another great visit with Buddy. Several kids were very excited and very willing to help with a couple of the therapy testing elements. They really are great!!

Please remember that even with the study guides counting as two book projects, your child is still expected to turn in a total of five. I will be counting all the projects already turned in this weekend and get together the current spreadsheet and have that updated for Monday.
