Hello Parents,

This is the end....the end of the year, the end of my newsletters, the END!! There will actually be one final letter...a tribute to this year...

We are wrapping up the last details. Today you should see several workbooks come home. We are finished with WordlyWise, Spelling and Math workbooks. That said...there are still some useful pages in both spelling and Math...if you wish to use this summer.

It's hard to believe how quickly we have arrived at the finish of this year. I'm still chasing work from some...this week has been a flurry of online checking and conversations. Don't surprised if a couple students are still a little stressed working through the weekend. You should already know if you child was behind. Hopefully this has been a powerful lesson in NOT procrastinating.

Next week is busy...and I really mean hectic busy. We will be practicing and rehearsing for the musical, cleaning out desks and storage bins, practicing for musical, getting final 3D prints in process, wrapping up those last pesky book projects and ThatQuiz quizzes, practicing for the musical, and hopefully having a little fun in between the other things.

I've added the end of the year Google Classroom memory book assignment. Ask your student about this project. It's a good one!

It's the last sprint to the end. I hope to make it as fun and thrilling as I am able...
