Hello Parents,

The last full week is done...YIKES!!

I've probably told the class a dozen times today (Friday) that there isn't time to do all the things we wanted to do...so we've cut the list down and we have the biggest ticket items at the top of the list and we are ready for next week!

Next week will be a whirlwind...there's not avoiding it, there's no slowing it down. We have full days of events, trips, field day activities, parties, and more!!

It's been a busy week this week. We've had great guests, Dr. French and presentations in Mr. Stahl's room as well. We've had our final counselor visit with a very positive talk about the transition to 4th grade and WLIS. Friday was our fantastic mini music program. I think the 30 minute presentation was really great. Students showed off the skills and it was nice and cozy with just the one class...not the big assembly. We launched a couple model rockets...they are currently in trees or just lost forever...but that's alright. We watched several of the less notable Snoopy/Charlie Brown videos. And we had a fun mini lesson on sound and vibrations that concluded with a laser light show. All in all it's been a pretty fun week...albeit busy.

I hope everyone has a great weekend. Get rest and please try to stay healthy. I want everyone to enjoy next week and be a part of all the fun activities coming!!
