Hello Parents,

Wow...what a week! Monday seems so far away...thanks to great parent help we managed to pull off a last minute viewing of the eclipse. <https://youtu.be/pHgGyqLik> What a full and crazy day that was...I couldn't have done it without the help...thank you again parents.

The rest of the week proved productive...if not quite as exciting. We worked through several interesting readings and discussions. We've stayed busy working through the learning lessons on TinkerCAD, progressing through Xtramath and more.

I have enjoyed the book projects coming in. Please help support your child getting starting/continuing their work reading and getting project in before Oct. 11. The creativity has been great so far. I encourage being creative and having fun with these projects...they really don't have to be torture.

Next week we have a great full week of learning. We are supposed to have our first fire drill, school pictures for 3rd grade are Wednesday...I'll try my best to get us in prior to lunch...maybe keep food stains out of pictures :-)

I hope everyone has a relaxing weekend. It's been a busy week and I know everyone should be pretty tired. Rest and come back Monday ready to get stuff done!
