Hello Parents,

We are cruising along nicely. This week really was a good work week. Some fell off towards the end, but we stayed busy and productive all week.

We have two days...just two days next week. That isn't much time for serious work. Therefore...we will do work, but keep in light.

I am looking forward to this weekend...a little curious about the snow flurries. Nonetheless, it is late November, I guess we are due for fall to make its transition to winter.

We will zip through next week and I hope it will be a relaxing and enjoyable family break. Then we return for about three and a half weeks. That means BOOK PROJECTS and keeping on top of quizzes and Google Classroom.

This has been a great busy productive grading period...and it'll be done in a flash.

Next week I will be presenting the next home research project. Native American homes. This will follow a similar model to the Cannons, Catapults and Trebuchet research project.

We survived Popcorn day! I kicked in a little to make sure everyone got a bag.

PMO CHRISTMAS SHOW PERMISSION!! Thank you for those that got those in in one day. The rest NEED to have that in Monday PLEASE!! This is our first class trip and should be a great one. I'll get back to everyone about chaperones soon. Because we are inside and pretty contained in the Hall or Music we don't need too many...but a few will definitely help.

Have a WONDERFUL weekend...REST!!
