Hello Parents,

Wow...that was a BUSY week. Coding, electrical circuits, blankets and more. We really did have some fun this week. Coding was great! The kiddos explored a bunch of great coding games and sites. Some found new favorites, others fell back to their go to coding locations. Lots of problem solving, a little bit of challenge, and a bunch of cool success!!

Next week we wrap up chp 7 in math. This will be the last chapter for 2016. We will wrap up and review, then take the test before the semester ends. Next week we will try to study a few different countries and their winter celebrations.

I look forward to the winter arriving, but wish the cold, very cold temperatures would hold off just a little longer. The weather stations are all talking about snow through the weekend...and possibly accumulation through Sunday. PLEASE make sure you have connected through Pinwheel (<https://trypinwheel.com/>) and/or Skyward. If your information in Skyward isn't correct and you aren't already signed up on Pinwheel you will not receive the alerts for delays or cancellations. I'm not making predictions...but want to make sure you are all aware and connected. WLFI is the local news that will also carry our school corporation news.

We are winding down...and there will be busy times...fun times...and some chaotic times.

No sew blankets. (<http://mrbrantley.weebly.com/no-sew-blanket-project.html>)

We will be completing the blankets next week and I will make the delivery. This has been a fun project. The kiddos all seem to have enjoyed making their blankets to donate.

PLEASE HAVE THE FLEECE IN BY MONDAY!! We begin next week!!
