Hello Parents,

We are nearly to the end. This is great news for most...but I know there are a few households that are going to be working hard this weekend. Book Projects, Native American Homes Projects and getting all the Google Classroom assignments caught up. The work is serious.

Next week I know about several that are leaving early. Please, if you are trying to get out early let me know. We are having a winter party Tuesday...I have a couple other fun things planned...but I know that there will always be some that miss...

Report cards will be passed out in January. I know a few have already contacted me concerned that there are concerns about missing Wednesday. No worries. Report cards will be safe until January.

No sew blankets ARE DONE!! The kiddos all seem to have enjoyed making their blankets to donate. The Salvation Army was THRILLED to get blankets, especially with the cold temps.

BOOK PROJECTS:

There are 5 projects due each grading period. That means 5 due by December 21st.
