Hello Parents,

*Sorry for the delay...sometimes Friday rolls into Saturday morning

We are now looking at the last full week ahead. Several things are coming up in the next week. We already had our busy week with kickball, projects and some of the end of the year assessments.

Next week we have one more end of year assessment, then I will have all the data ready for fourth grade teachers. We also have at least one more kickball game...then maybe one more?? We have a visit with administrators from WLIS along with a virtual tour of the school. This will also serve as a great opportunity for students to ask questions about WLIS, fourth grade and all things next year.

The end of the week has maybe the most exciting event. The 2021 spring field day is planned and we are excited!! Parent council and the building admins have worked hard to make this a safe and great field day!!

Next week will be another jammed packed week. Lots of good days ahead...even though they are few. I never count down...it's not the positive end to a year I want. I dread the end...because we are such a good class and so many great things are going as we speak. It's not often I feel like I've connected with a class like I have with this one. They are bright, curious and not afraid to make mistakes. They are going places.

I hope that everyone has a great weekend. Rest, relax, maybe enjoy a baseball/softball game, cook out and be ready for our last full week. We still have four days after this week...but those will be full as well...just not a full week. I just watched most of the Purdue commencement...I think I saw Ms. K. She was masked up and hair was curled...but I'm pretty sure it was her. She'd done...now she needs to get her own classroom and start her amazing career making a difference in students' lives. Rest up for Monday...it's going to be a busy mad dash to the end....
