Hello Parents,

We are another week done...three weeks to the end. It just doesn't seem real.

I have been working to gather and grade ALL assignments. With Ms. Brown's help we are close to having everything accounted for and graded. This is just past the midpoint of this grading period, so I hope that will serve as a midterm progress report for some. You can use your child's Google Classroom access to check assignments. If you choose the menu (three lines) and select "To Do" you can then look at the missing assignments...and the "Done" assignments. Here you will see all completed assignments and their grades. Assignments marked "Turned In" are either ungraded...or are ungraded assignments.

Next week we will have Ms. Brown just a couple final days. I hope to send her off with great memories and the experience to be a fantastic teacher.

Next week I hope to have a couple new projects. Like the Kite challenge, I hope that this might be a fun hands on project that will get people moving, thinking creatively and maybe having fun. There might actually be a couple projects...for when the work is done to try and keep minds active and problem solving.

Great work is happening daily. I enjoy seeing faces each day. Some days there are more than others. Some days the work is better than other days. These times are a challenge for us all. I NEED everyone to try...try to complete their assigned work and try to join the meetings at least once a week. This check in would help with communication. The Private Messages on Google Classroom are great for simple Q&A, but some things are just a little easier to say than type.

I hope everyone is staying safe and doing their best in these difficult times. Please keep in touch and we can finish this year strong and positive!

BOOK PROJECTS: 5 projects due 4th and FINAL grading period. 5 due by May 15th.
