Dear Parents,

This is the end...the final week...the final countdown...OMG This year has passed quickly!!!

I have been working on the list of items to try and squeeze into next week...it's LONG. I know that I will run out of time. We have been trying to enjoy the final days of this second to last week. This always happens...never fails. I run out of time and the summer beats me to the end.

I hope to make this final week memorable and still functional. There will be work, there will be fun, there will be some items coming home. As we wrap up the need for some workbooks or journals they will come home. This might offer material if you are looking for work for the summer. Especially in math, you will find that we covered entire topics using other resources...leaving several pages incomplete. There are other books that we have used and skipped around to the best material within the pages.

We will all enjoy a morning of bowling and fun on Tuesday. This has been a really fun final day with teachers and students. We get to escape the confines of school and have some fun. We will return immediately prior to our normal lunch time. This will make for a full fun morning. I look forward to the day...the amazing bowling skill demonstrations and the spirited excitement.

We will end the year with a fun field day. This should be a great chance to get outside and play.

Have a great final weekend!!
